

About Membership

#ofFISHalmember

If you're looking to engage with GSA, have you thought about becoming a member? Our purpose as an organization is to bring the seafood industry together, so the most effective way for your company to demonstrate its long-term support for progress towards responsible seafood practices worldwide is by becoming a member.

Other seafood companies find value in our membership program as it offers public recognition of their company through a logo listing on our website, free advertising, blog posts, as well as GSA event registration discounts to all of their employees, and access to online learning and other resources.

Your membership dollars will directly support our projects around the world to improve the seafood industry (such as digital traceability initiatives, uplifting small-scale farmers, and our work with the UN Sustainable Development Goals).

We offer four levels of membership to support you and your personal seafood journey, meeting you at your level of engagement with the seafood industry. Your membership dollars support our advocacy work around the world.
